In spite of her lack of training and the fact that her father held in disfavor the higher education of women, she always loved study of all kinds, and was especially attracted by languages.

A PARABLE.

Summer is gone, the butterflies are dead:
The little birds fly southward, one by one;
No longer elm and maple widely spread
Their boughs of emerald 'neath the shining sun;
The roses, too, are dead—woe and alas!
"So sweet a season and so soon to pass!"

Yet look again, sweet maid, and sigh no more;
With red and gold the bowers of autumn shine,
Russet and crimson deck the treetops still
And gayly paint the tendrils of the vine;
The wee, brown sparrows twitter, chirp and fly,
And glorious sunsets light the western sky.

All is not over, because summer's fled!
'Tis but a little while, ere back again
Will come the blithesome robin and the wren
And herald the sweet queen with all her train;
Far sweeter blossoms yet shall climb and creep,
Where the dead roses lie in dreamless sleep.
—Helen Percy, in Good Housekeeping.

NEATLY PLANNED.

I had just reached my office after lunch one miserably wet day last November, when a visitor was announced. "Mr. Engstrom" was inscribed on the card—a name quite unknown to me.

"Mr. De Warre?" said my visitor, a shrewd looking, well groomed man, who apparently had not yet touched forty.

"That is my name," I answered. "How can I do for you? What tell me what I can do for you?"

"I am in great trouble," said Mr. Engstrom. "We had burglars at our house at Lyndhurst, in the New Forest, the night before last. They broke in while we were at dinner and several thousand pounds' worth of jewels are gone from my wife's bedroom. But what distresses us is that a valuable heirloom, a pearl necklace of great value, that has been in our family for two hundred years, is among the plunder. The other jewelry we could bear to lose, but not this. To tell you the truth," he added, with a smile, "I must own to being a little superstitious, and there is a legend in our family that this necklace was a gift to an ancestress of mine by Charles II., and whoever shall lose it his days shall be very short and full of evil. It is said it was lost about the beginning of the century, and the legend came true. My wife is more superstitious than myself, and I am afraid if it is not recovered it may seriously affect her health. Of course the police have been at work, but I have not very great confidence in them, and up to the present they have discovered nothing. If you can aid me I shall be very glad.

"I am," said Mr. Engstrom, "the descendant of an old landed family who have lived in Hampshire for generations. We are not as wealthy as we once were, and I find employment for my time by being on the board of directors of several companies. I have only been married a short time, not quite a year, and we have been living very quietly. On Tuesday night, when the burglary occurred, there were only five of us at dinner. Besides my wife and myself were the rector and his wife and Capt. Olyer, the son of an old friend, whom I lately met in the city and invited down. He has been with us over a week, and leaves to join his regiment on Saturday.

"We had just reached dessert and Capt. Olyer was inquiring of the butler if Wisden (his man servant) had returned from London, when my wife's maid came in gasping: 'Oh, ma'am, your jewels are gone—robbers!' and sank fainting on the floor.

"'Goodness gracious!' I exclaimed, and we sprang up.

"'Let us search out of doors at once,' said the captain. 'Bring us a light, John,' he said to the butler, and rushed out. We followed him.

"It was quite dark, and we had not gone a dozen steps before he fell down. 'Look out,' he cried, 'the brutes have laid wires. They have caught one fool at any rate,' he remarked as he got up. I went back for a light, and sure enough there were wires around that side of the house.

"The captain was holding his nose. He was but little hurt, he said, for, luckily, he had fallen on the grass. At the captain's suggestion I summoned two men servants.

"I found a lantern, and we searched the grounds and the surrounding roads. We found nothing, save a ladder under one of the windows, and a small brooch which the thief or thieves had dropped. No suspicious looking person had been seen in the village or at the station, and the two policemen who came could do nothing beyond looking wise. I called at the police station this morning, but they have no clew, nor is it likely they will have one. All I have learned from them is that they believe that two were engaged in the affair from the footmarks."

"It will be too dark by the time we could reach Lyndhurst to investigate," I said, "but I will come on by the first train in the morning.

"I wish you to promise me one thing, not to mention to anyone the object of my visit. Call me a fellow director or anything you like."

I found Mr. Engstrom at the station the next morning with a dog cart. I forebore to talk on the subject of my visit save to ask one question.

"Why did you keep such a valuable necklace at home, Mr. Engstrom?"

"I kept it in the Safe Deposit in Chancery lane," he answered, "and only brought it home Saturday because my wife wanted it at the county ball tomorrow night."

I had some lunch and a pleasant chat with my host and hostess, after which I asked permission to interview the servants.

"Are your visitors in?" I asked Mr. Engstrom.

"Capt. Olyer is a rabbit shooting with the rector, but he will be in to dinner."

"Oh, I merely wanted to have his account of what happened. Now, would you be so kind as to have the wires arranged round the house in the exact place the burglars left them?'

The gardner, who had taken them up, brought them again. It was fine but strong wire, fastened to the ground by small iron pegs.

"Are the wires in the exact place?"

"I put the pegs in the very holes," replied the gardener. "You can see the holes yourself, sir."

"And now I should like to be left alone a little," I said. "I want to make some minute investigations."

My wish was complied with, and I went down on my hands and knees to examine.

I was well satisfied. In five minutes I had made an important discovery.

I next examined the window where the burglars had entered from the outside, and then entering the house I went upstairs and with the help of the maid examined the bedroom. The window had been left half open, the maid said, as "master was so particular about fresh air." Next I inspected the footsteps, a matter of some difficulty, considering the number of people who had been there since. But finally I traced them across a flower bed into the shrubbery, where they were quite distinct. Only one person had passed there, and I came to the conclusion the sapient police had evolved two robbers from their inner consciousness. But what interested me more was that the palings which separated the shrubbery from a public by-way had lately been tarred and were not yet dry. The robber had climbed over the palings, and whoever he was he must have carried away a little of the tar on his person. In fact, the marks of his fingers were quite distinct.

On getting back I had a pleasant half hour in the billiard room with Mr. Engstrom.

Capt. Olyer returned just in time for dinner, and I was only introduced to him as we entered the dining-room. He was faultlessly got up, of well-made figure and handsome features, bearing large traces of dissipation. As for his speech, he had an invincible objection to the letter "r," and carefully avoided its use.

We had finished dinner when I begged a thousand pardons for leaving the table for a few minutes. My host looked a little surprised at my want of manners, and the captain surveyed me through his eyeglasses as though I were a new kind of animal. I was only gone a few minutes, but it was time well spent.

When we reached dessert and Mrs. Engstrom had left the table, I led the conversation round to the burglary, and induced the captain to give his version. I waited till he had finished, and then, looking at him steadily, said:

"Now, isn't it rather a curious thing, Capt. Olyer, that you should fall over the wires when they were quite three feet away?"

Engstrom stared at me, and the captain did not answer till he had drank a glass of wine.

"What do you mean, sir?" he asked at last.

"I mean," I replied, still watching him keenly, "was it not a curious thing that you should be tripped by blades of grass? And is it not curious also," I went on, mercilessly, "that your servant, or rather your accomplice, should be standing under the bedroom window here at the same time he was in London?"

The captain sat dazed and pale and motionless, though his hands trembled, and Dr. Engstrom gasped out: "Mr. De Warre, whatever are you suggesting?"

"I suggested," I answered, as steadily as before, "that the burglar is sitting before you."

"Sir!" thundered Mr. Engstrom, pale with emotion; "you are forgetting yourself. To accuse my old friend's son of being a thief! Preposterous!"

"This is not your old friend's son, Mr. Engstrom. Capt. Olyer, of the Thirty-eighth hussars, is at present with his regiment at Woolwich, and replied to me to-day. Here is the telegram:

"'Capt. Olyer to De Warre: Am here. What is the meaning of this inquiry?'"

The pseudo captain had risen and looked around as if seeking a way to escape.

"Sit down," cried Engstrom, "and if you want to save yourself from jail make a full confession. De Warre, I beg your pardon."

"Don't trouble about that," I said; "of course it was hard to credit it."

The poor wretch sat down again and stammered out his story. His name turned out to be Odgers, an ex-sergeant in the hussars, expelled from the army in disgrace. His accomplice, who acted as his servant, had hidden the jewels in the wood near the house, till they could safely be removed.

At breakfast time the next morning I had to relate how I had unearthed the conspiracy.

"First of all," I said, "the fact that the burglary occurred shortly after you had brought the jewelry from London convinced me that the thief was some one in the house. And when I had the wires relaid and found that the captain had fallen three feet away from them—a fact which I discovered from the impression made by his knees and the toes of his boots—I thought things were very suspicious against him. Upstairs I found that it was little trouble for him to slip into your wife's room and throw the casket down as soon as she left the room. I learned that he had been the last to appear at the dinner table, and the case was strengthened. At the railway station I discovered that a man answering to the description of his 'servant' had arrived from London by the 5:30 o'clock train, and not by the 9:15 o'clock, as it was made to appear. What effect the telegram had you already know. In tracing the footsteps through the shrubbery I found that whoever had passed over the palings must have carried away some of the tar on his clothing. At dinner last night I seized my only opportunity and examined the man's overcoat and a pair of trousers. The tar was there, and he had evidently tried to remove it. That is all, I think."—Tid-Bits.

A RECENT addition to military literature is "Fables from Field and Staff," by Lieut. James A. Frye, of Boston. The book is the second of a series of stories of life among the citizen soldiery and the seven short stories, or enclosures as the author calls them, are brim full of pathos and humor.

ART AND ARTISTS.

THE great Spanish painter, Federico Madrazo, who died recently at Madrid, was the son of an artist and was born at Rome in the year of the battle of Waterloo. For the past thirty-five years he had been director of the Royal gallery at Madrid.

AN exhibition of paintings involving a new idea has just been opened in London. It contains only one hundred and twenty pictures, selected from the best in the French salons of the preceding spring, showing the London public what France has done during the year.

AN exhibition of "The Flower in Art" will shortly open at Petit's gallery in Paris. On the committee in charge are Mme. Madelaine Lemaire, Armand Sylvestre and Dr. Vitmorin, the botanist. The exhibition will contain representations of flowers in needlework, textiles, porcelain, sculpture and painting.

THE Art institute of Chicago has received from Harriet Hosmer the cast she made in 1853 of the clasped hands of Robert Browning and his wife. This is the cast of which Hawthorne wrote in the "Marble Faun:" "It symbolizes the individuality and heroic union of two high poetic lives." The autograph of "Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Rome, May, 1853," is on the wrist of one; "Robert Browning, Rome," on the wrist of the other. Miss Hosmer refused in England an offer of five thousand dollars for this unique cast.

GETTING NERVE.

A View of the Bridal Chamber to Give Him Courage.

"Got any bridal chambers here?" asked a tall, awkward young man with an ancient carpetsack in one hand, a frightened look on his face, a black slouch hat on his head, and wearing a hand-me-down suit of faded brown. He was from some interior town of Missouri.

"Yes, sir; we have some very fine bridal chambers here," replied Chief Clerk Cunningham.

"Waal, I want ter look at 'em, fer I've got to engage one of 'em," said the stranger.

"All right, just step this way, please," said Mr. Cunningham, who called an assistant and gave the order: "Show this gentleman the bridal chambers."

The stranger investigated the bridal chambers for half an hour and then returned to the counter downstairs and said to Mr. Cunningham: "Golly! those rooms air ez lovely ez a pastur' lot in Paradise! Now, they air the finest you have, air they?"

"Yes, sir, they are the finest in the city, and are good enough for a millionaire and his bride."

"Waal, I'm much obliged fer all the trouble you've gone to. I'll be in next week, I s'pose, an' take one uv 'em," the stranger said, moving off.

"Oh, you did not wish to engage a bridal chamber to-day?" said Mr. Cunningham, in surprise.

The young stranger almost jumped out of his brogans.

"Goshamighty, mister!" he exclaimed, "I han't ast the gal yit. I'm jist a-doin' this to get my nerve up so's I can go back home an' pop th' question to 'er."—St. Louis Republic.

SO LIKE A GIRL.

But Everybody Is Bound to Love Them as They Are.

It was in a Lewiston horse car of the uptown line the other evening, after the performance of "Shore Acres," when everything was crowded. Among the party who entered after the car was crowded were three young ladies. Each of them grasped a strap and stood. One of the girls who lifted her gloved hand had a beautiful bracelet upon her wrist. A middle-aged man jumped up and offered her a seat. She declined, waving one of her friends into it. Then a young man who is interested in the Lewiston Y. M. C. A. jumped up and offered his seat. The young lady bowed and told a lady back of her to sit. Then several gentlemen proffered her seats, but she declined them all with a sweet smile. After she left the car she said to her friend: "I'm awfully tired, I can hardly drag one foot after the other." "You ought to be," was the reply. "Why?" "You should have sat down in the car." "Yes, but you are not as strong as I." "I know, but another seat was offered you." "Yes, but that was Mrs. S— and I want to make friends with her." "I know, but even then there were seats offered." "Mabel," said the pretty girl suddenly, "don't be a blockhead. Do you suppose I was going to sit down when my bracelet was showing off so lovely?"—Lewiston Journal.

Why He Couldn't Sit Down.

Harry, aged six, is an orphan; but an indulgent grandmother and kind maiden aunt have taken care of him. The first pair of knickerbockers were secured recently, and it was a proud moment for the boy when his aunt put them on him on Sunday morning and he was permitted to go to church with his grandmother. Naturally maiden aunts know very little about the arrangements of knickerbockers, and there was a suspicious fullness in front and an equally mystifying tightness in the back to be observed, as the little chap trudged happily along. In church Harry sat down, but did not appear comfortable and stood up. "Harry, sit down," whispered his grandmother. He obediently climbed back on the seat, but soon slipped off again. "Harry, you must sit down." "Grandma, I can't. My pants is choking me." She looked more closely than her dim sight had before permitted, and discovered the new little knickerbockers were on hind side before. Harry stood up during the remainder of the service.—Golden Days.

FASHION NOTES.

TAN color and blue will be one of the popular combinations.

SILK muslin dresses, worn over silk slips, are popular for little girls at children's parties.

CAPES are growing longer, and, as the cool days come on, they will increase in length and be of heavier material.

FUR-LINED circulars are among the coming probabilities. They are, of course, the legitimate outcome of the present fashion for capes.

CHILDREN'S suits are mad of two colors, with hose to match. A dress of blue and gray has the yoke, sleeves, belt and stockings of blue, the rest of the costume being of gray.

GLOVES of black undressed kid are fashionable. They are not always comfortable to wear and should be avoided by ladies whose hands have the slightest inclination to perspire.

PEARLS are again in the height of fashion, and, by one of the caprices of La Mode, are said to be appropriate to wear in the daytime. This is one of the oddities of fashion, and one, by the way, which it is just as well not to follow.

SLUMMING in London has its dangers. Canon Fremantle, while spending a few days at Toynbee hall, was knocked down and robbed of his watch and chain in a street near by, in sight of a police station.

EBENSBURG, CAMBRIA CO., PA.,

FRIDAY, - - NOVEMBER 23, 1894.

It took trade some little while to get on its feet, but now it is commencing more and more to employ its hands in getting along.

On Monday State Senator George Ross, (Dem), died at his home at Doylestown, Pa., from Brights disease. He was one or the ablest members of that body.

Senator Sherman thinks for all that the country has had enough of a monopoly tariff. This is another dig at McKinley, who is under the impression he had been entirely dug up.

McNeary, Tenn., a station on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, was completely wiped off the map by fire on Tuesday. The total loss is about $75,000. The fire is thought to be the work of incendiaries.

An industrial plant at Baltimore has notified its employees of a ten percent increase on wages to take effect December 1. That is what the Wilson law is doing for workingmen. That is how it affects wages.

Sugar has gone up an eighth of a cent a pound since the election. Does the sugar trust feel more secure in its position, and that the house bill, pending in the senate, cutting off its precious bit of protection, will fail of passage?

Oklahoma, and more especially the Cherokee strip, has been visited by a fierce sand storm for a week, and the sand is blinding. The city authorities have ordered fires in the business section to be extinguished. Part of the time one could not see fifty feet.

If it had not been for Republican gerrymandering in Pennsylvania every congress district in the state might have been swept by the Republicans at the late election. In cooping too many Democrats into a few districts the Republican bosses overdid the matter, and suffer by their own cunning.

Governor Fower has summoned John R. Fellows, district attorney of New York to show cause why he should not be removed from office. This action of the governor is the result of charges of neglect of duty on the part of Colonel Fellows made by a committee representing the good government clubs of New York city.

A little more than thirty miles from the coast of Japan the Pacific ocean was found to be over 28,000 feet deep. Some officers surveying for a telegraph cable had their wire break at this depth without reaching the bottom. This is said to be the deepest sounding ever made, and is so deep that the two highest mountains in Japan placed one over the other in this abyss would leave the summit of the upper one, two-thirds of a mile below the surface of the water.

The government November crop report shows an improvement in the prospects of the cotton crop, which is attributed to favorable October weather. The crop has been more rapidly harvested and marketed than in any former year. The report also shows that the corn yield averages about one and a half bushels per acre more than was indicated in October. The present estimated average is 19.7 bushels per acre throughout the country. But this is the lowest rate of yield since 1881. The apple crop at large is put down at 41.9 per cent. of an average product, while the yield of hay is 1.15 tons per acre, against 1.32 tons in 1893.

Indications multiply to show that the German government is pursuing a repressive policy toward importatations from the United States that in the end may call for retaliation. The latest evidence is contained in a report to the state department from United States Consul Roberston, at Hamburg. He says that a movement is being set on foot by the imperial government looking to the complete exclusion of dried and evaporated apples from the United States, which are found to contain more than a specified amount of zinc, supposed to have been taken up from the zinc frames on which the fruit is dried. As a result the trade would severely suffer.

The government of the United States, says the Philadelphia Record, has too large a floating debt to do business with safely. It could manage to get along pretty smoothly as long as it had a large surplus of ready cash on hand with which to tide over such emergent occasions as occurred in 1873 and 1884. But there is danger in redundant revenue and large surpluses. They breed extravagance as surfeits breed indigestion. There would be no billion dollar expenditure every two years if there had not been an opportunity and an excitement in the condition of the federal treasury. The demand liabilities of the treasury are, therefore, not only a mischief in themselves, but they are the prolific source of collateral mischiefs.

The public mind has been debauched as to the true nature and office of money by making an evidence of debt an arbitrary measure of value. There is no way out of the evil in which the finances of the country are entangled except to take immediate measures to rid ourselves of government paper money. Until that shall have been accomplished no safe basis of business can be established that will not be at any time liable to upheaval as the result of a financial convulsion, engineered possibly by cliques or syndicates organized to make profit out of public disaster.

R. G. Dun & Co's. weekly review of trade for last week, says:

In nearly all branches of business gradual improvement appears. Last week was noted the fact that the main conditions of business and trade had not suddenly changed, and this becomes clearer, to the disappointment of some. Low farm products, low wages and only partial employment of labor still retard distribution, and the limited demand hindering the progress toward recovery has not ceased and many establishments have resumed or added to their producing force, some also advancing wages, but it will take time to lift business out of its depression, and the progress made, if less than the sanguine expected, is at least encouraging.

The decision to offer $50,000,000 of bonds for replenishment of the treasury reserve was by bankers generally approved, but events are showing that restoration of confidence cannot by itself remove all embarrassment. It is generally assumed that the offered bonds will be taken at once. The effect is less easy to anticipate, for the formal announcement that, after a general reconstruction of the revenue laws, it is still found necessary to borrow largely tends to raise doubt about financial provisions for the future. The reported importation of gold from London with a loss on its face of $7,500 at present exchange rates is presumably meant to effect the bond subscriptions. There have already been some withdrawals of gold from the treasury by redemption of notes to make payments(for bonds, and goods rather than gold are likely to come from Europe. London has also sold here about 15,000 shares of stock during the week.

Money continues to accumulate, none going west, while the outgo to the south has diminished. Bankers are much encouraged by indications of larger business, but there is no increase as yet in commercial borrowing.

For finished products of iron the demand is on the whole narrower, so that structural beams are lower, the barbed wire combination has broken, the strife in nails continues at the lowest prices heretofore named, and both grey forge and Bessemer are a shade lower at Pittsburg. Failures in the first week of November were larger than of late, being 270 in the United States against 232 last year, and 38 in Canada against 36 last year.

In regard to the validity of the marriage license law a dispatch from Harrisburg says that Attorney General Hensel has declined to give Auditor General Gregg an opinion as to whether or not there is any license law in force in Pennsylvania, in view of the question raised at Pittsburg recently that the act of 1893 on this subject repeals the marriage act of 1885 or suspends it until October 1, 1895. General Gregg's request for an official opinion in this matter was made at the suggestion of a number of clerks of the orphans' court in the state.

The attorney general declines to give an opinion, because he says no cause or state of facts calling for such an opinion has been presented either to him or to the auditor general. He adds, however, he does not hesitate to express his individual opinion and unofficial that the claim that the act of 1885 is repealed, suspended or abrogated is unsound. He holds that it was the intention of the act of 1893 simply to amend the act of 1885, by providing that hereafter marriage licenses might issue either out of the county in which the ceremony was to be performed, as heretofore, or out of the county of the residence of either of the contracting parties. By the terms of the act of 1893, its enlarged provisions do not become effective until October 1, 1895. Meantime it is the opinion of Mr. Hensel that the act of June 23, 1885, requiring marriage licenses and imposing a penalty for the solemnization or witnessing of marriages without such licenses, is in full force and operation.

Judge Waddell, of Chester county, in his charge to jurors recently made clear to them how it is that costs may be imposed upon a man who is acquitted of an offence with which he may be charged:

"This," said the Judge, "is a subject that the public do not generally understand. A jury may be satisfied that the man is not guilty of the crime with which he is charged, and yet he may have behaved in such a way as to lead others to believe that he was guilty. His indiscreet or unlawful behavior may have been of such a character as to warrant an investigation and to have justified the commonwealth in making it. The defendant in such cases, although innocent of the crime, or at least not proven guilty to the satisfaction of the jury, is nevertheless to blame in some degree, and imposing the costs upon him is the only punishment that can be given him for that offense, and it is no injustice or inconsistency to impose them upon him. To impose the costs upon him for the purpose of saving that amount to the county treasury would not only be a false idea of economy, but absolute injustice. It is only when, in the opinion of the jury, that the conduct of the defendant has been such as to make him deserving of some punishment that they can acquit him of a crime charged and yet impose costs in cases known as misdemeanors."

Wm. L. Wilson's congressional district extends from the Pan Handle in the northwest of West Virginia, along the Pennsylvania and Maryland boundaries eastward to Virginia, south to Pocahontas county and west to Webster, Upshur and Harrison counties. It contains 15 counties. Its extent is measured by 225 miles from east to west and 125 miles from north to south, and embraces an exceptionally rich mining district. Its interests and industries are numerous and varied, including agricultural, mineral and industrial. It has vasts forests of spruce and hemlock for the conversion of which mills have been erected within the past ten years. Coal mining is the leading industry.

Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17, 1894.—Those Republicans and Populists who are trying so hard to make somebody think that they believe the Democratic party, as a national organization, is dead, are merely making themselves ridiculous. The Democratic party, which, to go no further back than the memory of every middle-aged man, made six successive unsuccessful presidential campaigns—defeated in five at the polls and in one at the hands of an abortion known as the electoral commission—is not to be killed by dissention among a few of its prominent members which resulted in a stay at home vote large enough to defeat it in a congressional election. On the contrary, that defeat will eventually make the Democratic party stronger than ever before, because it will result in showing some of the prominent experimenters that delegations from the established principles of the party will not be tolerated by the voters; that thousands, aye millions of good Democrats will refuse to endorse any half and half principles, preferring defeat to compromise with principles they have been taught to oppose. The recent election was a bitter lesson, but the future will prove that it was a useful one.

President Cleveland is not spending much time at the White House just now, because the time is short between this and the assembling of congress, and his annual message to congress, which will be one of the most important to the country and to the Democratic party he has ever written, requires his entire time, and he can work undisturbed at his country residence, something which experience has shown him he cannot do in his office at the White House. During his vacation the president devoted much time to studying the financial system of the country, which is generally admitted to be radically defective, and the result of that study will be shown in the recommendations of his message to congress.

No Democrat can possibly regret the issue of bonds, officially announced this week by Secretary Carlisle, more than does President Cleveland and the members of his cabinet, but in the face of the necessity for preserving the national credit, and in the absence of any other method, owing to the system inherited from a long series of Rebublican administrations, regrets were idle and action imperative. When a merchant finds his credit endangered, owing to his receipts being less than his expenditures, he cannot afford to waste time in regrets because those expenditures are largely the result of extravagant contracts made by his predecessor. His credit must be protected and nothing will do that but prompt payment of his obligations as they mature, and to do that he must have money and it can only be had by borrowing it on his note. That he does, trusting to his ability to stop the leaks in his business and make it profitable in order to pay it back. That is precisely the position of the administration in announcing an issue of bonds.

Senators Ransom and Gorman had a casual meeting and a friendly conversation in a committee room at the Capitol one day this week, and straightway a story was started that they had evolved a plan by which a Democrat was to be elected at an extra session of the North Carolina legislature to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Vance, and Senator Ransom was to resign and be elected for a full term beginning March 4, 1895, at the same extra session. Verily, "the wicked fleeth when no man pursueth."

Secretary Herbert left Washington tonight for Mobile, Ala., where he goes to take part in the ceremonies attending the public reception by the citizens of Mobile in honor of the cruiser Montgomery, which is to be held next Monday. Secretary Smith has also gone South, but his errand is one of private business connected with the trial of an important lawsuit, at Atlanta, in which he is one of the counsel.

A striking exhibition of fanaticism run wild is given by the criticism of Mrs. Cleveland by members of a Pennsylvania branch of the W. C. T. U., because she followed the usual custom and broke a bottle of champaign in christening the steamship St. Louis, launched at Philadelphia last Monday. The criticism is all the more senseless because Mrs. Cleveland is a consistent advocate of temperance, never drinking wine at her own or anyone else's table. In this case she was an invited guest and had no more to do with what was to be used at the christening than a guest would have to do with what was served on your table. M.

Probably Working on His Message.

Washington, Nov. 20—It is understood that the president has not yet taken up for consideration the papers in the case of Charles H. J. Taylor, recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, the colored politician from Kansas, who was charged with violating the civil service law in demanding political contributions from negro office holders. The papers were sent to the president by the civil service commission three months ago. It is stated positively that the recommendation of the commission was that Taylor should be removed and prosecuted. The case is regarded by the commissioners as one of the clearest violations of the law ever brought to the attention of the president.

A Colliery on Fire.

Manch Chunk, Pa., November 20.—Number 11 colliery of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, located between Lansford and Tamanqua, is on fire. The fire started at 3 o'clock this morning. It originated in the lamp house at the foot of the shaft, 600 feet under ground. The flames spread rapidly and the entire mine will have to be flooded before the fire can be extinguished. Only three men were in the mine at the time. Their escape by means of the shaft was cut off, but they reached the surface through the steam pipe shaft, which is very steep and narrow. Over 300 men are thrown out of employment.

Five People Killed.

Ures, Sonora, Mexico November 20.—A courier from the town of Soyopa, situated in the Yaqua river valley, southwest of here, has arrived, bringing information of depredations committed near that place by a band of Yaqui indians.

The ranch of Pedro Hernandez was visited by a band of Lo warriors, and three women and two men belonging to the Hernandez household were killed. The Indians, after committing the murders, burned the ranch buildings and drove off several hundred head of cattle toward their rendezvous in the mountains.

Convicted of Second Degree Murder.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., November 21.—Stewart Whirley, the colored boy who shot and killed William Taylor in this city in June last, was to-day convicted of murder in the second degree. Under the new law his sentence will be for life. Whirley is 20 years of age.

Japan Wants Permanent Peace.

New York, Nov. 20.—The Recorder will to morrow print an interview with Minister Shinichiro Kureno, of Japan which was recently obtained by Miss Jessie M. Wood, the famous newspaper reporter, at the Japanese legislation in Washington.

In answer to a request to tell the real object of the Japanese war, the minister said that the only object is the permanent peace of the east. Corea, he added is in a state of corruption which he cannot describe, and Japan wishes to get her promise for certain reforms. He denied that Japan is desirous of occupying the island of Formosa and declared that Japan has not a wish for territorial aggrandizement. Continuing, the minister said that if the proposed negotations for peace failed, and the Japanese should push on to Pekin only to find that the Chinese had raced into the interior with the intentions of carrying on the war to the bitter end, Japan would surely follow. He believes, however, that the war will be all over in the spring Regarding the possible interference of an European power, Great Britain for instance, the Japanese minister questioned very much whether Great Britain would attack Japan. He admitted that England was anxious that the war should terminate.

At the conclusion of the interview Miss Wood called on the Chinese minister. She was received courteously and was granted an interview on varous subjects, but the interpreter declined to question the minister regarding the war.

May Make Trouble.

Washington, November 20.—Our government has not yet been officially informed that the Danish government, like Germany, has prohibited the importation of American cattle and meat. Our trade in these commodities with Denmark is insignificant in volume, but if it should appear that the Danish government has been induced to issue its decree at the instance of Germany, the correspondence between the latter country and the state department is likely to assume a very different tone from that in which it has been conducted.

It is one thing for a nation to exclude our meats on sanitary grounds, even if the case is badly sustained, but it is an entirely different matter for such a nation to go out of its way to induce a third nation to join it in a boycott of American products. Probably it would be difficult to establish the fact that Denmark has been influenced to decree its prohibition at the request of Germany, but should this be made clear, a diplomatic issue of gravity would be raised between the United States and Germany.

Couldn't Stop the Train.

Memphis, November 18.—Shortly after midnight this morning an attempt made to hold up a passenger train on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad at Panther Run, Miss., was balked by the coolness of Engineer F. A. Honer. Panther Run is a small way station. Soon after nightfall a half dozen strange men entered the hamlet and hung about for an hour or two. Then they disappeared and were not seen again until the train had stopped and was starting out, when one of them appeared on the track ahead, signaling the engineer to stop.

Engineer Honer pulled out the throttle and sent the train through. As it passed the signal light, a half dozen unmasked men stood there, revolvers in hand, and all took shots at the engineer. Fireman Cole received a bullet through his arm and is seriously wounded. The men were evidently new at the business. The railway officials are exerting themselves to apprehend the would-be robbers.

Railroads Want Pay.

Washington, November 20.—During the recent strikes many railroads applied to the government for protection and troops were placed on trains and along the disturbed portions of their routes. Now the companies who availed themselves of the protection of their property are filing bills with the war department for the transportation of the soldiers, whose chief duty was to keep their lines open and guard their property.

Nothing, it is asserted, was said about charging for carrying troops at the time they were asked for and it was supposed that the roads would transport them free of cost, as their services were chiefly needed to support the interests of the roads. The war department opposes the payment of the charges and it is likely will contest the claims in the courts. The department, it is said, will raise the point that as the railroads sought protection of the troops they have no right to regard them as ordinary passengers.

Hill to Fight the Income Tax.

Washington, D. C., November 19.—When the income tax was under discussion Senator Hill was assured that the $9,000 appropriated for the income tax work could only be used for the preparation of blank forms and not for the direct work of collecting the income tax. Upon this assurance Hill withdrew his objection, saying that he would continue his opposition to the collection of the income tax at the coming session of congress.

That session will meet in two weeks from to-day, and if Senator Hill makes good his promise to continue his fight upon the income tax law he could defeat its provisions.

Among the estimates that Secretary Carlisle will send to congress when it meets will probably be an item of $500,000 for the collection of the income tax, and Senator Hill will undoubtedly use this appropriation as an opening wedge in his fight.

Fat Turkeys Will be Cheap.

Massillon, Nov. 20.—Turkeys ought to sell at 2 cents a pound less than before for Thanksgiving trade, as there will be more turkeys and fatter than the public has had a chance to buy in years. While everybody was lamenting the drouth last summer, the well-bred turkey was flourishing like a green bay tree, for nothing is more beneficial to the gobbler's kind than hot and dry weather. The poultry breeders of this vicinity have car load after car load of splendid birds, and there will be a slump in prices when they reach the market.

—Mrs. Alice Kline, of Sunbury, who was badly burned by her clothing catching fire from the stove on the 11th inst., died Saturday after suffering all week. She was 42 years old.

—The Woman's club, of Chicago, refused Mrs. Fannie B. Williams, a colored lecturer, membership. Mrs. Williams's application led to a divtsion which may disrupt its organization.

—The cold in Northwestern Connecticut is said to be the severest ever recorded at this season. There has been good sleighing for several days, and the theremometer in the valleys has registered 10 degrees below zero.

—Five men are in jail at Dublin, Ga., for the confessed murder of Capt. Williamson, a wealthy planter. The men killed him for pay by a neighbor, named Jackson, whom Williamson flogged for traducing Mrs. Williamson's good name.

—On Saturday night the barn of A. A. Kohlbecker, at Milesburg, Centre county, was totally destroyed by fire. All the vehicles were saved, but twelve tons of hay and about eighty bushels of oats and corn were burned. The loss is about $800, on which there was no insurance.

—The Fayette county historical society is busily engaged in making a research into the early history of the Indian wars in that section. They are stimulated in their efforts by the commission appointed by Governor Pattison to mark the sites of the forts built by the whites as a means of defense against the Indians.

—On Monday Joseph Wise, of Coalville, Ohio, a stone contractor, during a fit of despondency, committed suicide. He placed a stick of dynamite four inches long in his mouth, and by lizing it discharged it. His head was blown off at the shoulders, not a particle being found except some brains and blood.

—William Flick, an old man residing near Gultown, who kept his money hid in out buildings, died recently and at a sale of his effects William Trippy, a farmer, found $100 in bills secreted in an old wood shed. He turned it over to the executor. The whole place is being dug up as it is reported Flick had buried $10,000 on the farm.

—Why do men living in the cities favor shade trees, while those living in the country leave their homes without any protection from the heat and storms? Lightning strikes much oftener the house not thus protrected than it does the one having an abundance of foliage. How much home comfort might be had by placing a few ornamental trees around our homes, in the shade of which the hot days might be spent.

—A terrible accident happened in the mines of McDowell county, W. Va., on Monday evening, on the line of the Norfolk and Western railroad, in one of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company's houses. Four or five colored men employed in that region were attempting to open a a keg of miner's blasting powder with a mine pick. The instrument was driven through the keg with such force as to cause the powder to explode, and two of the men, Elmore Knight and Sam Dunn, were blown to atoms. Charles Seoly was injured but will live.

—William H. Dawson, single, 30 years old, a merchant of Smith's Ferry, Pa., accindetally shot himself Wednesday morning. His store had been robbed twice recently. On Tuesday night he arranged a gun in his store, with wire attachments fastened to the windows, so that the gun would explode if the windows were disturbed. Wednesday morning when Dawson opened his store, he forgot about his deadly trap and attempted to raise one of the windows. The contents of the gun entered his stomach. He died in Allegheny, while being taken to a hospital.

—A daughter of Isaiah Zimmerman, residing near Stoystown, Wednesday morning, went to the barn to feed the stock. Approaching a dark corner, a man concealed there seized her. After handling the girl very roughly, the brute criminally assaulted her. He then fled. In the darkness and her almost senseless condition the girl did not recognize him. There are strong suspicions as to the identity of the brute. The girl, who is aged 17, has been critically ill since, but it is now believed she will recover. Subsequently a tramp, who was identified by the young lady, was arrested and is now in jail.

A portion of the ear is missing. Gable is 48 years old married and lives at Glen White.

—One of the most interested attendants of the recent Huntingdon county teachers' institute was a man 94 years old, who walked to Huntingdon from his country home each morning to be present at the sessions. He was a teacher for many years and only retired from active work in the school room six years ago. Many of the most prominent men of the county were his pupils and he has taught the classics and mathematics to hundreds of scholars. He is still hearty and none was a more eager listener to instructors and lecturers at the institute than he.

—The young American wage worker who puts forth his best efforts, and who practices what economists call abstinence, or the limiting of expenditure to less than income, has as good ground for expecting to become a capitalist as the gardner to expect a crop from good seed deposited in rich and fertile soil. It is no less true that he who does as little as possible to keep him in his position, and who has slight regard for the interest of his employer, has the elements in him that make it almost certain that he will always be a member of the dependent class.

—A delegate meeting was held on Friday at Reynoldsville, Jefferson county, Pa., at which the miners of that place and DuBois, Clearfield county, were represented, for the purpose of taking action on the proposition of the Bell, Lewis & Yates Coal Mining Company to reduce the price of mining to thirty-five cents a ton, and all other work proportionately. The delegates decided to report in favor of accepting the reduction for the time being, and on Friday evening the report was accepted by a mass meeting of the miners at DuBois, and it is understood at Reynoldsville also.

—James O'Brien, a man about 30 years of age, is now in the Hollidaysburg jail awaiting a hearing at court on the charge of robbing freight cars on the Pennsylvania railroad. The specific charge on which he is likely be tried is the one committed at Bennington on or about April 5, 1894, when he broke open and entered box car 71,353 and stole a number of hats valued at $36 and a box of varnish valued at $35. His accomplices in this robbery were Sloan and Dillon, who live near Bennington, and who were captured, tried and sentenced to six months in the county jail last June.

—Enoch Isenburg, of Yellow Springs, has an apple tree that has blossomed and brought forth two crops of fruit this year. The first crop of apples was gathered in June last, and at the present time the tree has several hundred apples thereon. Arthur McMurtrie, of this place, has shown us some of the fruit and left a sample at this office. They are about the size of crab apples and well formed. When the fruit was shown to Henry Greene, an aged citizen of Tod township, he said he gathered the second crop of apples from a tree on the same farm in 1841, fifty-tree years ago.—Huntingdon Local News.

—This is the latest swindle practiced on farmers "who can't afford to take a paper." Stopping at a farm house that is insured, the swindlers represent that they are special agents around inspecting risks, and so get the name of the company who have insured the house. Later they return with a type-written letter to the effect that the company has failed and that they were empowered with the authority to transfer the policy to another. The farmer is prevailed upon to sign what he supposes to be a promissory note for a sum ranging from $10 to $100. The swindlers are reaping a rich harvest and rarely fail to work their game.

—A Stoyestown correspondent of the Somerset Herald writes: On last Monday night quite a singular patient was brought to the office of Dr. J. H. Gardner. He was a man by the name of Christner, who lives with Nelson Simpson, about five miles south of this place. The unfortunate man had retired, and shortly after fell into a sound sleep—so soundly did he sleep and so deeply did he snore that his lower jaw became dislocated on both sides, in which condition he was brought to the doctor about 4 o'clock in the morning. With considerable difficulty the laxation was reduced and the man was taken home, feeling as though nothing had happened, except with a a sore jaw from his experience.

—What may prove a fatal accident to one unfortunate young woman occurred at Huntingdon at 6:28 on Monday evening, as Fast Line west, on the P. R. R., was approaching the station. Clara Martin, aged twenty-two, and Elizabeth Miller aged nineteen, cousins, were crossing the Pennsylvania Railroad at the station, and, their view of the north track being obstructed by a mottonless freight, they were unaware of the approaching passenger train and were run down. The pilot of the engine struck Miss Martin and hurled her a distance of thirty-five feet along the platform. She sustained fractures of the right jaw and right elbow, was severely injured about the hips, and suffered ugly gashes on the head and face. Her injuries may prove fatal. Miss Miller sustained a slight contusion on the back part of the head, and was soon able to move about.

Killed in a Mine.

William Brown, a miner employed in the Ashcroft mines and who resided at Baker's X roads, near Carrolltown, did not return home at his usual time on Saturday evening, and his wife becoming alarmed at his absence, sent their son, a lad about twelve years of age, to the mine after him. Brown was working alone that day, and the boy after entering the mine found the lifeless body of his father under a mass of coal that had fallen upon him, his head and shoulders protruding.

Brown was about 50 years of age and leaves a wife and five children. His remains were interred at Hastings on Monday, his funeral being in charge of the Knights of Pythias, of which organization the deceased was a member.

An Old Pamphlet.

One of the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad at Philadelphia, in looking over some old books and papers recently, came upon a well worn pamphlet, a copy of which is in the hands of one of the officials, and will probably be incorporated in the book of the Historical Society. The pamphlet is entitled "The Portage Railroad Over the Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylvania," and was gotten up by S. W. Roberts, principal engineer thereon. It is dated Johnstown, January 1, 1836, and comprises a twelve-page description of the predecessor of the now vast Pennsylvania system. The pamphlet tells that Sylvester Welsh was chief engineer of the work; Solomon W. Roberts, principal assistant engineer, and Patrick Griffin, surveyer. These pioneers, with an axman and cook, started on the work April 12, 1831. The Portage railroad extended from Hollidaysburg, at the head of the Little Juniata, to Johnstown, a distance of thirty-one and one-half miles, connecting there with the Pennsylvania canal, which, in turn, connected with the Pennsylvania railroad, the western terminus of which was then at Harrisburg. The road, Engineer Roberts is particular to state, cost $1,634,368.69½. It consisted of eleven levels of planes, and, during all the time it remained in operation, was one of the wonders of America. The mountain ascent from Johnstown to the Summit was 1,171½ feet in 26¼ miles, and the descent from the Summit to Hollidaysburg was 1,399 feet in ten miles. The cars were passed over the plane by means of wire ropes, attached to stationary engines, and it is a notable fact that, during the twenty years the road was in service, no serious accidents occurred.

Some Important Facts.

The evenings are long enough now for every person to devote some time to reading. The best literature is the daily newspaper, and the best newspaper is the Pittsburg Times. It is complete in every department, gathering promptly the news from all parts of the world and presenting all sides of every public question fairly and intelligently. Its market reports are models of accuracy; its departments for women readers and for the farmer are useful and entertaining, and its serial stories are by the most noted writers. The aim of its publishers is to make the Times a paper for the home above everything else, and they have succeeded admirably.

The Times is delivered by agents for one cent a day, or will be sent by mail for thirty cents for one month; fifty cents for two months; seventy-five cents for three months; $1.50 for six months, or $3.00 for one year. If there is no agent for the Times in your locality write for sample copies, which are sent free, and terms to agents.

A Cow in a Coal Mine.

The Houtzdale, Clearfield county, Journal tells this story last week:

"A cow belonging to Solomon Hill, of Brisbin, fell in an old unused coal shaft near that place over two weeks ago and still she lives. The query with the owner was how he was to get her out of prison. The shaft was said to be in the neighborhood of 150 feet deep, and the poor animal lived at the bottom of this pit for seven days without anything to eat or drink. Mr. Hill knew that something had to be done, although every known means had been used by him and his neighbors to extricate the animal from its terrible position, and so on Saturday, with the assistance of his friends, he managed, by means of ropes, to pull the poor brute to the surface. She looks much the worse for lack of grub and her fall in life."

Coal Rights in Dispute.

County Surveyor W. M. Fraser left on Monday afternoon for Benscreek, where he will be engaged the remainder of the week settling up a land-line dispute between two coal companies. The parties concerned are W. H. Piper & Co., of this city, and E. W. Mentzer. It is alleged that the latter operator has mined for a distance of over 200 feet on Piper & Co.'s property. Mentzer, on the other hand, claims that the land line is not properly drawn, according to the survey of 1794. A large amount of money hinges on the result of the survey to be made by Mr. Fraser.—Altoona Gazette.

With Imposing Ceremony.

Cherrytree, Pa., Nov. 16.—Over 1,500 people gathered here to-day from three counties to witness the unveiling ceremonies at the monument erected by the state of Pennsylvania marking the boundary line of William Penn's purchase from the Indians.

ExGovernor Beaver made the unveiling address. F. A. Shoemaker, Esq., of Ebensburg, followed in a short address devoted to a brief review of the laws William Penn made for the people. Judge Harry White, of Indiana, gave an historical sketch.

—A Dubois boy, while hunting in the woods near that place on Monday, shot a large black bear which is said to be the largest killed in the state for many years

As a Shortening Route.

The Pittsburg Dispatch of last Saturday has the following concerning the Ebensburg and Blacklick railroad:

"A railroad that will in all probability be an important factor in shortening the distance between Pittsburg and Philadelphia has just been opened. It is the Ebensburg and Blacklick railroad, and runs from Ebensburg, Cambria county, to Vintondale. It is a branch of the Pennsylvania railroad. The distance is only 12⅝ miles, and by pushing it 23 miles further a short connection can be made with the West Penn division. Through trains could then be run via the West Penn and the Ebensburg and Blacklick divisions and cut down the time between Pittsburg and Cresson nearly an hour. President George B. Roberts, with his inspection party, went over the new line last week, and was well pleased with it.

"The new branch was constructed to reach the mines of the Vinton Mining Company, an Eastern concern. They were inaccessable. To get at them and with the idea of shortening the distance from Cresson to Pittsburg the Pennsylvania Railroad Company agreed to extend the Ebensburg branch from the terminus at Ebensburg to the mines at Vintondale.

"The extention was completed about ten days ago and the line opened for traffic. One of the stations is called Twin Rocks on account of a high embankment of rock on each side of the tracks. The cut is 900 feet long and cost the "Pennsy" $50,000. It is estimated the new branch cost at the rate of $20,000 per mile. The country is very wild and much difficulty was had surmounting some of the obstacles that confronted the surveyors.

Notwithstanding the hilly condition of the country the roadbed is the best that could be put down. The bridges are iron and steel, and the best stone was used in building the culverts. The entire work shows that it was done more for a main line than a coal road. This leads to the belief that it will only be a short time until all the through trains are run around that route instead of down the Conemaugh valley.

District Passenger Agent Thomas E. Watt took a trip over the new branch Thursday. The line is in his territory and he wanted to familiarize himself with the location of the stations. A schedule of rates and train service has been arranged and trains are now running to and from Vintondale. The latter is only 14 miles across the country from Johnstown. Heretofore the nearest way to reach it was by way of Ninevah. The mails are now sent over this route. From Ninevah they go by stage part of the way and are carried on horseback to their destination.

In and around Cresson the "Pennsy" is making a number of improvements. That station is now the junction of about four branch lines, and the increased tonnage and passenger traffic is making the summer resort a busy place.

The Institute Lecture Course.

The institute program this year is one of the strongest presented anywhere in the state of Pennsylvania. It is costing much more than any ever presented to our people.

The people of Ebensburg and vicinity have always patronized liberally a first-class entertainment, and the the support they have given the institute lecture course in the past has made it possible for the Cambria county institute to take front rank in this state. The course this year is exceptionally strong and well arranged.

The lecture on Monday evening will be by John R. Clarke on "To and Fro in London," which has been delivered more than 1,400 times since it was first given at Chautauqua. He filled his fourth engagement at Huntingdon county intitute last week with a full house. Music by Decillo's orchestra. Apple will sing.

On Tuesday night we will have an opportunity of hearing one of the greatest men on the American platform—Will Carleton, author of "Betsy and I Are Out," "Over the Hills to the Poor House." He is an orator as well as poet. This may be the only opportunity you may ever have of hearing him. It is part of an education to hear and see such men. Music by Decillo's orchestra. Apple will sing.

Wednesday evening the Ovide Musin Concert Company, consisting of five people—all stars—now making their ninth American tour, will give one of the finest concerts ever heard here. The following receipts will show how they are appreciated where known:

Jan. 19, Charleston, S. C., night and matinee, $1,253.50.

March 23, San Francisco, two performances, $1,900.

April 20, Seattle, Wash.. one performance, $697.00.

On Thanksgiving evening Major Henry Craige Dane, of Boston, will deliver his lecture, "The Great Naval Battles of the Rebellion." The G. A. R. Post of Ebensburg will attend in a body as the guests of the institute. Major Dane delivered this lecture in Huntingdon last week. Supt. J. M. Berkey, who heard it, says: "Major Dane's 'Great Naval Battles' is indeed a wonderfull ecture. In thrilling interest and real worth I consider it the equal of any platform lecture I have ever heard." Preferring to have a greater number of people enjoy these rich treats the price of tickets will not be increased.

Doors open at 7; exercises begin at 8.

Season ticket with reserved seat each evening, $1.50.

Season ticket without reserved seat each evening, $1.00.

HOLMES' BLACK LIFE.

He Has Swindled Many Insurance Companies.

TELLS THE STORY OF HIS CAREER

To Detective Holmes, After Trying to Bribe Him to Escape—His Family Composed of Several Dozen Wives and Children—Suspected of Several Murders.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Arch-Conspirator H. H. Holmes, accompanied by Mrs. Pitzel and a pretty woman who calls herself Mrs. Holmes, have arrived in this city in the custody of Detective Crawford and Special Agent Perry, of the Fidelity Mutual Life association. Mrs. Pitzel's 16-year-old daughter, Meda, and her 1-year-old boy were also with the party.

Holmes sat beside the detective with handcuffs on and the train had scarcely emerged from the Boston depot before the prisoner tried to bribe his captor. He offered the detective $500 if he would allow him to hypnotize him so that he could escape. He said he had frequently hypnotized persons, having acquired the art from a college professor in the west. He said he could get the money at once from his wife and Mrs. Pitzel. When he saw that his words had no effect Holmes entered into general conversation and told the story of his life.

He said he was raised in Burlington, Vt., and was so well educated in school there that at 15 he was a teacher. For some time afterwards he went to college there and later in Detroit. Here he formed the acquaintance of a medical student, who, he said, furnished the body in New York in the present case. He refused to divulge his name. During vacations they worked on farms to raise their college expenses, but one summer they found themselves without means and it was then that the medical man suggested the idea of getting a body and beating an insurance company. This was 12 years ago. The doctor got his life insured for $12,500, they obtained a body in Chicago, took it east, arranged the details of identification and successfully got the money with which they continued their studies. He refused to name the company Uhrs swindled.

They worked the scheme afterwards with success, Holmes continued, obtaining sums ranging from $10,000 to $20,000. Once Holmes got his own life insured for $20,000. He went to a hotel in Rhode Island. At that time he wore a beard. He secured a corpse in Chicago, cut off the head and took the body to a lonely spot not far from the hotel. Then he shaved off his beard, returned to the hotel, asked for Holmes, and engaged a room so wait for him. He had brought the head with him and burned it beyond recognition in the fireplace of the hotel. This scheme, however, fell through, the mother of his wife, when she discovered it, threatening to tell the police and Holmes fled to the west.

Resuming his story, Holmes said that while living in Chicago about 18 months ago, he fell in with a typewriter girl and furnished a house on the outskirts, where they lived together. A younger sister came to visit them, and the woman grew so jealous of her that in a quarrel one day she struck her over the head with a stool and killed her. To save the woman with whom he was living, Holmes said he put the body in a trunk, loaded it with stones, and sunk it in the lake. This girl had property in Texas and he and Pitzel took it off her hands and sent her abroad. It was worth, he said, $40,000, and after getting it in their hands, they went through Texas, buying carloads of horses on notes on this property, but as they never had legal title to the property, the notes were worthless, and it is for this affair that they are wanted in Fort Worth. To save this property, Holmes said he and Pitzel formed the scheme of swindling the Fidelity company. He told the detective that for the crimes he had committed he deserves to be hanged a dozen times.

Holmes is not lacking for money, as he himself admitted that at the present time he is supporting nearly two dozen persons, including the girl murderess, her mother and an imbecile brother; two orphans in Chicago who live in one of his properties, three separate alleged wives, and their children and his own mother and father in Kankakee. He would not give the names of the women. He firmly maintained that Pitzel is alive in San Salvador and that he will hear from him through the personal column of a certain New York newspaper.

A telegram has been received by President Fouse of the Fidelity company to the effect that Howe, the St. Louis lawyer, is en route to this city, with McDonald in the capacity of his "adviser." It has been decided to arrest a number of other persons whose names have not yet been given out.

Special Agent Perry still maintains that Pitzel has been murdered. When in the west he saw the parents of Mrs. Pitzel and they told him that their daughter had complained of the exorbitant fee charged by the St. Louis lawyer—$2,500. In corroboration of his murder theory, Mr. Perry said that he had from Mrs. Pitzel an exact description of her husband, agreeing in every respect with that of the corpse found in the Callowhill street house. Mrs. Pitzel, he continued, was perfectly innocent of any complicity in the whole affair. She had been forced, through ignorance and pressure of various kinds, to sign certain papers, but she told Perry that she had had received only $500 in cash. She said Holmes had taken $5,000 of the money and put it in a land speculation in Fort Worth in which Pitzel was also interested. Holmes told Perry that this was true.

In Texas, Perry said Holmes operated under the name of H. M. Pratt. He added that B. F. Perry, B. F. Pitzel and B. T. Lyman are one and the same man. Mr. Perry further said that Holmes is said to have one wife in New Hampshire, from whom he claims to have been divorced and by whom he has a child 15 years old; another in Illinois, whom Mr. Perry himself saw, and by whom there is a 6-year-old child, and the wife who is at present in this city.

Mr. Perry intimated that he feared that Pitzel's children had also been murdered.

Wanamaker Slated For the Place.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—A movement is on foot to secure the election of John Wanamaker as president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company at the annual meeting of the company which is held the third Tuesday in January. It is said that if Mr. Wanamaker should be elected his chief lieutenant will be J. Lowrie Bell, who was his second assistant postmaster general.

Thought to Have Suicided.

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 21.—The body of Landis Hostetter, a young man who has been missing from home for a week, has been found in Little Conestoga creek, with the throat cut from ear to ear. The fact that his watch and money were found on the body leads to the belief that it is a case of suicide, ill health being assigned as the motive.

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 21.—Alfred Getz, the Welsh mountain negro desperado, who was convicted of assaulting an 80-year-old white woman, has been sentenced by Judge Brubaker to undergo an imprisonment of 14 years and 5 months in prison, the extreme penalty being 15 years.

SOVEREIGN IS RE-ELECTED.

He and Hayes Secure Their Old Jobs at the K. of L. Convention.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—Grand Master Sovereign has been re-elected without any opposition by the Knights of Labor general assembly. Messrs. Bishop of Massachusetts and Merritt of Colorado were nominated for foreman, the place now held by Bishop, and the latter was elected.

Secretary-Treasurer Hayes was re-elected, although there was some opposition. The expenses of delegates to the convention, amounting to about $2,500, were ordered paid.

The present members of the executive board were placed before the meeting and were elected with but a few dissenting votes. The members of the board who received this hearty endorsement are as follows: T. B. McGuire, Amsterdam, N. Y.; H. B. Martin, St. Paul, Minn.; C. A. French, Marlborough, Mass., and James M. Kenney, Omaha, Neb.

Washington, D. C., was chosen as the place for holding the next annual convention.

The officers were then installed by Henry T. Allen of Michigan. The committee on distribution then submitted 49 documents touching on legislation and recommended several amendments to the constitution.

The election of officers had been slated for the end of the convention, but it was determined to hold the same immediately so as to preserve harmony, as it was supposed that the Powderly faction might develop a stronger following. There is plenty of work for the assembly and adjournment will probably not take place before the last of the week.

Powderly and his delegation have left the city without springing their sensational charges and applying for writs of injunction against the officers of the general assembly.

New York Chamber of Commerce Celebrates Tammany's Defeat.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The one hundred and twenty-sixth annual dinner of the chamber of commerce of New York was given last night at Delmonico's. There was a general rejoicing on the part of the speakers because of the result of the recent elections in New York city.

At the president's table were, in addition to Alexander E. Orr, the president of the chamber of commerce, who presided, James H. Eckels, comptroller of the currency; James S. T. Stranahan, William H. Webb, Samuel D. Babcock, Major General Nelson A. Miles, the Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs of Brooklyn, William L. Strong, mayor-elect of New York; Rear Admiral Henry Erben, Murat Halstead, Charles S. Smith, Prince R. Ruspoli, mayor of Rome, and Horace White.

Among those present were Senator Calvin S. Brice, Henry W. Cannon, General Horace Porter, L. Edward Simmons, John Claflin, Samuel Thomas, ex-Secretary Charles S. Fairchild, General Anson G. McCook, George J. Gould, William Brookfield, Congressman Isidor Straus, Congressman Warner Miller, John D. Crimmins and others.

President Cleveland, Parkhurst and others sent regrets.

ANARCHIST FRANCH DIES.

The Heartless Spanish Dynamiter Executed at Barcelona.

BARCELONA, Nov. 21.—Jose Salvadore Franch, probably the most desperate anarchist now living, the man who on Nov. 7, 1893, threw a dynamite bomb into the Liceo theater here, killing 20 people and wounding 50 others, was executed between 7:30 and 8 a. m. today. Franch spent the last 24 hours of his life in the prison chapel, which was heavily draped with black, and lighted yellow candles displayed on the altar produced a gruesome effect.

Franch refused to sign his death warrant, as the law requires, exclaiming: "Long live Anarchy."

Upon entering the chapel, Franch refused to receive the priests, and to a Jesuit father who sought to administer religious consolation, the anarchist exclaimed fiercely: "Get out! I was only acting! Only pretending to be religious in order to live well and hoping to get a pardon. The crime I committed was an expiration due from the Bourgoisie."

Franch's daughter is to be rebaptized and christened Liberated.

ALL EYE OPERATIONS SUCCESSFULLY PERFORMED BY HIM

A Case of Deafness of Over 25 Years, Standing Cured by Dr. Salm.

For 25 years or more my hearing has been bad, my left ear almost deaf. I have been under Dr. Salm's treatment for the past five months, and my hearing has been very greatly improved, in fact the change has been remarkable. I am still under treatment and hope for an entire cure. Gratefully,

ISAAC PIERSON.

Bedford, Pa., Sept. 19, 1894.

On account of the very vague explanation of the above, I give the history of the case in detail. About 30 years ago Mr. Pierson, on account of catarrh, became so hard of hearing in his left ear that the same might not have been there at all for the actual services it did him. The right one for the last 20 years became worse and worse, and it took some very loud talking for him to understand you. Now, after five months' treatment, he can hear again with the totally useless ear, so as to say deaf for 30 years, conversation and even whispers again, and his right ear is almost as good as any good ear might be. Friends who know him will testify to the correctness of my statement. DR. M. SALM.

Felt Like Dying Rather Than to Stand the Agony Much Longer, But Was Cured By Dr. Salm.

For five years I have had kidney, stomach and liver trouble. The fearful pains in my back and bladder I had during that time made me often wish for death. I could hardly work, sleep or rest, and had to go out regularly every night four or five times to void urin. Could hardly eat, and when I tried a little of something it made me ill, and after four of our best physicians had failed to cure me, I thought it was about time to die. Some of my friends, however, advised me to go to Dr. Salm, who had performed so many wonderful cures in this part of the country. After I had taken his treatment four days I found it did me some good. I have taken his treatment now for six months and can enjoy life once more, and I would advise all my friends to go to this eminent doctor to get cured, after other physicians fail. Yours gratefully,

ELIAS ZERFOSS.

Somerset, Pa.

Given Eye Sight and Relieved of Pain after 20 Years of Suffering by Dr. Salm.

For over 12 years my eye-lashes have been turning in, and consequently they rubbed on the eye-ball, keeping the same always inflamed and very painful. In order to have a little relief, I had to have the eye lashes pulled out every few days. As the result of all this, my left eye went totally blind, and the right one was going the same way rapidly. I put myself under the care of Dr. Salm, and to-day I am happy to state that I am not troubled any more with the lashes as they grow in their normal direction, and the sight of the right eye has improved to a great extent. I am wonderfully cured.

Catarrh and Lung Trouble Cured by Dr. Salm.

For nearly 5 years I have had a bad case of lung trouble and catarrh. I was treated by three of our best physicians, but gradually grew worse and worse, until I was recommended to try Dr. Salm by one of his patients whom he had cured of a similar trouble. I despaired of ever getting well again, I felt so badly. To-day I am thankful that I put myself under the Doctor's treatment for I can enjoy life again with pleasure, and am glad that I am cured.

LIKELY A DEATH KISS.

A Philadelphian Very Low and Two Men In Jail.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—In consequence of a brutal beating received three weeks ago at the hands of J. W. Priestly, a well-known carpet manufacturer, and a man named Michael Harkins, Gustav Goethert, a music teacher, and proprietor of a piano store in this city, is lying at the point of death at his home, 1332 Girard avenue.

Goethert had been employed by Priestly to teach the latter's 12-year-old daughter music. About the first of the present month, when the child had finished her lesson, Goethert complimented her upon her learning and printed a kiss on her cheek. The girl informed her parents and Priestly became angry and declared that the music teacher should be punished. On the evening of Nov. 19, Priestly is said to have gone to Goethert's store and after upbraiding him, beat him severely. Not satisfied with this rebuke, he is said to have returned again with Harkins and Goethert was again beaten.

Priestly and Harkins have been arrested and committed to prison to await the result of Goethert's injuries.

To Settle a Bad Rule.

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 21.—John Bryson, until recently an inmate of the State Soldiers' and Sailors' home, located in this city, has brought suit against the commission governing the home which will result in a precedent and will probably settle the legality of a much complained of rule of the institution. Bryson's suit is for $111, which the home authorities have retained from his pension money. By a rule of the institution, 50 per cent of all the pension money collected by inmates is appropriated by the home. In cases where the inmates have dependent relatives the money is forwarded to them, but where no relatives exists the home keeps the surplus. Bryson secured a judgment in an alderman's court, but the case has been appealed and will be carried to the supreme court.

A Mine Found on Fire.

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Nov. 21.—No. 11 colliery, located between No. 10 and Coalport, on the Nesquehoning branch of the Central railroad, and owned and operated by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, has been found to be on fire. The discovery was made by a miner who went down in the shaft. He had great difficulty in getting back, and when taken out was pretty badly used up. There are 38 mules in the burning mine, but it is generally supposed that the animals can be saved by taking them through the manways. How the mine caught fire is a mystery. Some persons think it started at the lamphouse down the shaft. The mine is a valuable one and gave employment to between 300 and 400 men.

On Nov. 27 they will go to Philadelphia, where the resolutions adopted by the last encampment praising Past Commander-in-Chief R. B. Beath, for 25 years chairman on rules, regulations and ritual, will be presented. The resolutions have been engrossed on silver and are placed in an envelope of silver, with gold lining.

Pittsburg Bank to Buy Bonds.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 21.—Pittsburg will ultimately take its share of the new $4,000,000 government bonds, but will make no direct bids. The banks of this city hold about $3,775,000 in gold, and the banks in the county will swell the amount to probably $4,000,000. Up to date the only demand has been for $300,000 for the purchase of the new 5 per cent bonds. The Dollar Savings bank has notified the eight national banks in which it deposits its cash funds to be ready to furnish $300,000 in gold when it is wanted, and they are prepared to produce.

No Special Election.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—Governor Pattison will not be in a hurry to issue a writ for the special election in the Fifteenth congressional district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman Myron B. Wright. The governor is of the opinion that the people of the district do not want to go the expense of holding a special election at this time when it can just as well be held at the spring elections without any additional expense and has decided not to issue the writ for the election at this time.

WITHOUT THE

Non-pull-out

it is easy to steal or ring watches from the pocket. The thief gets the watch in one hand, the chain in the other and gives a short, quick jerk—the ring slips off the watch stem, and away goes the watch, leaving the victim only the chain.

This idea stopped that little game:

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant (stem) and fits into the grooves, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

ROCK, FIRE AND DEATH

Fly With an Incompetent Miner's Blast.

SEVEN KILLED AND THREE HURT.

A Fearful Explosion at the Blanch Coal Mines at Collier's Station, W. Va. Miraculous Escapes From Death—The State Mine Inspector Investigating.

WHEELING, Nov. 21.—The explosion at the Blanch coal mines, on the Panhandle railroad at Collier's station, was one of the most appalling mine disasters in this section of West Virginia. A new miner, an Italian, set off an overcharged blast which ignited the coal dust in the mine and a fearful explosion followed. There were 45 men in the mine at the time and the following are known to be dead:

Michael Roony, Thomas Jordan, Thomas Tucker, married, David Rowland, married; John Donnelly, married and leaves 10 children; Antonio Gattie, married, and Mazzle Gostedeo, married. The following are badly injured: Joe Refel, married; Raffle Necki, will die; Jasper Lawrence and Thomas Morris, colored.

After the explosion there was a terrific whirlwind in the mine, carrying everything before it. Donnelly and
